Thanks for reaching out. Sounds very optimistic. Looking forward to working together and getting this resolved.

Just to confirm, we will be receiving documentation for the amortization schedule tomorrow for review, and by 3:00 pm you will let me know how much good faith deposit will be paid.

Please make sure this happens. As you said, the last thing you want is to promise something that won't be fulfilled.

I am very disappointed that we didn't hear from you yesterday.

Last Sunday's call sounded very optimistic and I thought we were finally getting to the end of this. But it seems you are continuing with your empty promises.

I had told you that communication is key. If you weren't able to send the docs yesterday, I don't understand why you would not have emailed me or have your Attorney call our Attorney and advise about the delay.

I will not accept any further delay and non communication. I'm sorry it has come to this.

We are going to instruct our Attorney on Friday to move forward with all means available to him to collect this debt.

I know this will not be good for your PR with your banks and shareholders and may affect your share price but you have left no option.

You continually tell us that you will be making arrangements to finalize the funding of these 600 machines but then we don't hear from you.

You need to send a further good faith deposit and arrange for the balance to be secured this week.

In the hope that I would receive something from you prior to days end, I've waited till now to send this email.
